No Rest For Regents In Summer

By John Weber

The Omaha University's Board of Regents were active during the "hazy, crazy, lazy days of summer." The board accepted new members and elected a new board president, named a University vice-president, renamed five of six colleges and raised lab fees among other things.

The Regents elected three-year board member Robert Spire as president. The Omaha attorney succeeds Varro Rhodes who retired from the Board after two four-year terms.

The Omaha Board of Education appointed three new regents. Two will serve four-year terms. They are attorney Robert G. Fraser and businessman Drexel J. Sibbernson Jr. The pair succeed outgoing members Varro Rhodes and Frank P. Fogarty, who each served eight years.

The third new member is veterinarian Dr. A. B. Pittman. Dr. Pittman will serve the unexpired three years of Kenneth B. Young's term.

Young, who was the first Negro on the Prexy board, resigned to accept a job with the Office of Economic Opportunity in Chicago.

At the June meeting, Dr.

George Rachford was elevated to the post of University vice-president. Dr. Rachford, who has been assistant to the President, Dean of the Graduate College and Professor of Education, becomes the first person to serve as vice-president since 1958. That year, Vice-president Charles Hoff died, leaving a vacancy that lasted eight years.

Dr. Rachford will continue to be a Professor of Education, as well as Dean of Faculties. In the latter position, he assumes responsibility for recruiting faculty and guiding the entire academic program of the University.

Rachford's successor as Dean of the Graduate College is Elton S. Carter of State College, Pa.

His rank at OU will be that of Professor of Speech.

The Regents created a new position — Assistant Dean of the Graduate College. Robert O'Reilly was promoted from associate professor of education to this job.

Another new position is that of director of the Bail Student Center. Fred D. Ray was named to this post. He had directed the student union at Southwest Missouri State Teachers College.

James Q. Hossack was promoted from Associate Professor of Engineering to head of the Department of Civil Engineering. Hossack replaces Col. Anson Marston, who is the new acting dean of the College of Engineering and Technology.

The busy Regents increased intercollegiate grant-in-aid funds in light of higher tuition rates this fall. Likewise, they also increased lab fees to meet higher expenses. Fees in 15 categories were affected. Largest increase came for the television classroom fee which jumped from 45 to 60 dollars. All regular fees remained the same.

In other summer action, President Spire abolished three (Cont'd. Page 2, Column 5)

Regents Hire Five For Coming Year

The Omaha University's Board of Regents hired five new faculty members, all effective September 1.

George C. Thompson is the new Assistant Dean of the College of Continuing Studies. He replaces Dr. Sam Sollenberger who resigned July 1 to become the president of the new Bellevue College opening next year.

Dean Thompson comes from Buffalo, New York, where he was assistant to the dean of Millard Fillmore College, State University of New York, from which he holds both a Bachelor of Arts and Master's degree.

Also hired is Michael H. Campbell, the new Instructor of Physical Education for Men and acting head of that department. He comes from the University of Nebraska, from which he holds a B.S. degree.

His position was formerly headed by Dr. Russell Gorman, who resigned effective 31 to go to the Mankato State Teachers College in Minnesota.

Another new faculty member is Barbara Helling, who will become Assistant Professor of Psychology. She is currently completing Ph.D. requirements at the University of Nebraska. Previously she was a psychometrician at the Women's Job Corps in Omaha.

Nelontine Maxwell was named Instructor of Mathematics. She has taught at the University of South Dakota; Morningside College, Sioux City, Ia.; and Iowa State University, Ames. She received her B.A. from Vassar and Master's from South Dakota U.

Named Instructor in Geography was John P. Zipay. He comes from the Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, where he has been a graduate assistant while completing requirements for an M.A. degree. He received his B.S. degree from the Pennsylvania State University.

Robert S. McGranahan, Director of General Printing and Information for 16 years, resigned to become health science editor at the State University of New York at Buffalo. He joined the OU faculty in 1950 as Associate Professor of Journalism.

The Regents also accepted the resignations of the following, effective August 31:

Betty Beesen, Instructor of Elementary Education; Clois Coon, Assistant Professor of Accounting; Brian Gfeller, Instructor of Mathematics; R. R. Hancox, Professor of Physics; Joseph LaCasca, Assistant Professor of Economics.

Others are: Allan Longacre, Instructor of Speech and Drama; John D. Miller, Associate Professor of Music; James J. Oeder, Instructor of Speech; Curtis C. Roseman, Instructor of Geography; Nancy Samuelson, Instructor of English; Dudley Sauve, Instructor of Speech; S. A. Spagnuolo, Assistant Professor of Foreign Languages; Philip E. Vogel, Associate Professor of Geography.

Leaves of absence were granted to Ernest J. Kemnitz, Jr., Instructor of Chemistry, for the 1966-67 academic year; and Carolyn Kundel, Assistant Professor of Home Economics, for the first semester of this year.

Also granted a leave were Stanley S. Thomas, Associate Professor of Engineering; and Robert C. Schleiger, Director of Liaison, Business and Education, College of Continuing Studies, both for the first semester of this academic year.

Professional release was granted to Dr. Glen I. Earthman, Head of the Department of Administration, College of Education; and Dr. Shanti K. Bose, visiting Professor of Mathematics.

Valuation Up, Mills Down; OU Seeks Court Injunction

By Bob Erxleben

Last week the County Board, sitting as the County Board of Equalization, cut the city's tax levy to 18.71 mills and the University of Omaha levy to 1.71 mills.

Due to a 24 per cent valuation increase for assessed tax value used this year, the reduction does not mean less tax money. However, if the mill levy cut stands and the valuation increase is thrown out by the State Supreme Court, the result would be a tax loss of some two million dollars for the city and two to three hundred-thousand dollars for the University of Omaha.

If the valuation increase stands, the city's 18.71 mills will be adequate. It will be adequate because the old 22 mills, which raised the same amount of tax monies, was adequate.

With the University of Omaha, it's another story. A levy of 1.71 mills won't be adequate for the simple reason that two mills wasn't adequate.

In the words of OU President Dr. Leland Traywick, "The University of Omaha is desperate for money."

In his appeal to the board, he cited the high percentage of revenue that must come from tuition and added that OU is the only university in the state without a major building program.

The appeal did no good. The University then filed a petition in District Court asking that the board be restrained from reducing the University's tax rate.

Tuesday the dispute was aired in a District Court hearing. District Judge Paul Garrotto heard Seymour Smith and Ross King, attorneys for the University Board of Regents, battle Deputy County Attorney Arthur O'Leary and aid James Murphy for a temporary injunction enjoining the County Board from lowering the levy.

O'Leary argued, "The University is not justified in keeping a two mill levy in the face of state valuation increases."

Countered Smith, "The voters authorized a two mill levy without attaching a dollars and cents tag. . . two mills stands, regardless of valuation."

Judge Garrotto granted the University a temporary injunction, setting September 15-16 as dates for the University to seek a permanent injunction.

For Eligibility G.I.'s Must Sign

The Veterans Administration urges all veterans planning to attend school this fall under the new post-Korean G. I. Bill to apply for Certificates of Eligibility as soon as possible. Early applications are necessary for the timely issuance of checks when due about October 20, for veterans enrolled by September 20.

All applications must be completed, signed and accompanied by a certified copy of the report of separation from service. When claiming dependents veterans should submit a certified copy of the public record of marriage and if applicable, a certified copy of the public record of birth of one child.

VA estimates 34,000 Nebraska veterans are eligible for educational benefits and expects 4,300 to enroll in Nebraska educational institutions by October 1.

Assistance in making application may be obtained at the Lincoln VA Regional Office or the local County Service Officer of the Nebraska Department of Veterans Affairs.

Gateway To Examine Issues, Explore Possible Solutions

A new school year is about to begin. It brings new students, new instructors, new classes and new problems. New problems for the University as well as the student body. And, some old problems still linger.

Old "issues" such as school spirit, school dress and friction between various campus clubs and organizations pall before some of the real and vital issues facing the University of Omaha and its student body.

The University's need for funds is very real. Soaring tuition rates and the University's lack of facilities attest to that. More and better facilities are needed — more office space, more classrooms, more parking area, et al.

Faced with the threat of a mill levy cut, this situation gives rise to many questions, prime among them, whether to remain a municipal university or go State.

One of the leading questions concerning students and faculty alike is that of "academic freedom".

Perhaps, foremost in the minds of many male students is the old question of the draft and what to do about it.

Morals and mores, traditions and fads, school activities and outside activities. . . anything and everything concerning or affecting the student body is fair game for a Gateway probe.

In the weeks and months to come, the Gateway will attempt to thoughtfully explore these and other significant questions, presenting the pros and cons and, hopefully, arrive at some conclusions.

Hammers 'Sound of Music' For Summer Construction

By Rich Lundgren

Summer construction at OU was highlighted by the building of an addition to the west court of the Administration building.

The new addition will add office space on the second and third floors. According to physical plant head, Robert Krenzer, the project should be completed in November.

The companies handling the project are D. R. Anderson, construction; Brite-way, electrical; and Hannigan, mechanical. Harold Keefover, comptroller for the university, said that so far OU has spent some $195,000 on the project.

The only temporary change caused by the construction is the relocation of the stenographic bureau on second floor where the Business Office was formerly located.

Other construction at OU is what Krenzer labeled as "summer remodeling". Included in this summertime renovation is moving of the business office, accounting, registrar and admissions from second floor to the first. Krenzer said that this renovation project is to be completed by the end of this week. Keefover said that the remodeling is to cost some $27,800.

The third summer project which is labeled as "routine" included a wide variety of work from the building of two ramps leading from west of the Student Center to the temporary buildings. These are for the physically handicapped. This work is being done by the physical plant department.

Other construction projects included the installation of two antennas on the AA building, which will be used by the physics and engineering departments.

Two traffic lights are being added to the campus, one from Elmwood Park to the Fieldhouse — the second, out to 60th & Dodge from the Administration building.

The Student Center has been the scene of a number of changes. One will be of interest to those who like to study in the ballroom. The wall between the faculty dining room and dining rooms A & B has been knocked out and to be replaced with a sliding wall. This elongated dining room will accommodate approximately 225. According to Bob Gruber, Student Center building supervisor, this will help eliminate the frequent closing of the ballroom to the students.

OUampi Room patrons may find service a little faster with the installation of a dumb waiter between the OUampi kitchen and the kitchen on second floor.

Another Student Center renovation is addition of a doorway at the front of the bookstore. This should speed up cashiering.

Total summer construction included 86 projects, 15 of which are not yet completed.

First Woman Graduates With Enforcement Degree

Three years ago Omaha U. initiated a Law Enforcement and Security degree. This summer eight students earned such a degree.

One of those eight is a woman. As a matter of fact, she is the first woman to receive this degree. Adding to her honor, Victoria R. Bastron also graduated magna cum laude with a 3.8 average.

She is interested in the area of juvenile detention, a field which she feels more and more women will enter in the years ahead.

And just in case the enforcement business gets a bit rough, Mrs. Bastron can make use of her newly-acquired knowledge of karate, which she mastered in addition to her degree.

A native of Red Oak, Ia., she attended Drake University before coming to OU. Her father is Jonathan B. Richards, a Red Oak attorney and a member of the State Board of Regents.

According to Mrs. Bastron, more and more women will work in various phases of law enforcement, adding "the woman's touch". She praised OU's program, saying her previous experience with juvenile problems so far has been limited to five-year olds. She is the mother of a five-year old daughter, Elizabeth.

New College Names Take Effect In Fall

Former OU students returning this fall may be surprised to find themselves in a "different" college. Actually the college will be the same, only its name has been changed; that is, for the time being.

On June 16, the OU regents voted to change the names of five of the six colleges at Omaha University. OU President Leland Traywick believes the new names are more in style with the nomenclature of progressive colleges across the nation.

The College of Business Administration will retain that title. However the other five have been renamed.

Perhaps the most drastic change is calling the Applied Arts College, the College of Engineering and Technology. The former Teacher Education College is now simply the College of Education.

The title of the Liberal Arts College has been lengthened to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Just the opposite has happened to the College of Graduate Studies. It is now known as the Graduate College.

The College of Adult Education has a new name and a new name for the degree it offers. The newly named College of Continuing Education will offer a bachelor of general studies degree rather than the former bachelor of general education.

Peace Corps

Peace Corps placement tests will be given September 10 in Room 1014, Federal Bldg., 215 North 17th St. Tests begin at 9 a.m. for those willing to do something about the weather instead of talk about it all the time.

Don't worry about prior "cramming" or the "class average", tests are non-competitive and require no preparation.

Three new committees were promptly created — community co-ordination, higher education co-ordination and university resources.

The Regents will next meet on September 15.

Grid Fans Treated To Winning Season?

By Dave Decker

Omaha University gridiron fans may be treated to another winning season, as the Indians open the schedule Sept. 17, at Idaho State University.

With last year's 8-2 record, and their third CIC Championship in four years, head coach Al Caniglia's charges are returning with 27 lettermen, including 16 starters. He lost only 16 starters.

Leads Attack

Leading the attack for the Indians will be Marlin "The Magician" Briscoe. And a magician he is. Briscoe pulled enough rabbits out of hats to place him fourth in the nation in total offense with 2,181 yards—passing for 1,729 and rushing for 513.

Briscoe, a 5-11, 178 pound senior from Omaha South High, has claimed three varsity football letters while on duty for the Indian outfit.

Rick Davis, 5-7, 180 pound junior from Omaha North, is expected by Caniglia to fill the slot vacated by graduate back Gerald Allen. Davis was the starting flanker back last season.

The fullback hole will be filled by Bill Dodd, 6-0, 225 pound senior from Omaha Central.

Ron Sayers, brother of pro-backs, Roger and Gale, is also expected to see action at the running back position. He was a starting defensive back last year.

Offensive Line

The offensive line is the only part of the squad that needs replacements. The entire right side was cleaned out by graduation. Soph Carl Goodman, a 6-3, 225 pounder, has been moved from defensive end to offensive guard.

Senior Bill Jansen has been switched from defensive tackle to offensive tackle and senior linebacker Terry Edwards, will see double duty as a tight right end.

Veteran Defender

Dave Rak will be a veteran on the defensive unit. Rak, a 6-2, 212 pound senior, from Omaha South is slated for tackle assignment.

The Indians finished in 12th in the nation's NAIA colleges, dropping from sixth place the final week of the season, following a 36-30 loss to Drake.

Combine all the talents of top offensive and defensive players, with a top-notch coaching staff and Omaha University should have championship performance.

Italian Leprechaun Plus Talented Staff Produce OU Winners

Al Caniglia, on the strength of an 8-2 season last year is the most successful football coach, percentage wise, in Omaha University history.

The 45-year-old Omahan has compiled a 35-19-2 record through six seasons for a .625 average.

Caniglia served two years as an assistant before taking the top job in 1960. Al was selected coach of the year by the Knute Rockne Club of Kansas City in 1961 following his 6-3 season.

Al and his staff have become great developers of talents. They recognize the underrated player and have spent considerable time with kids who were not considered top college material in high school.

The results are evident. Senior Dave Rak, for instance, played only his last year in high school. Guided by the Caniglia method, Rak became a starter as a freshman and last year was all-conference tackle.

Caniglia is also aware of the constant changes in the game. Although his old system was producing, he overhauled the offense last year, changing it to a pro-type attack. The Indians proceeded to shatter almost every school offensive record in the book.

It's almost magical the way Caniglia takes doubtful talent, weaves it with veterans, and comes up with winners. His teams have won the CIC title three of the past four years. For this reason, he's been dubbed the "Italian Leprechaun."

However, certain credit must be given to the fine coaching staff behind Coach Caniglia.

Assistant Coach Don Watchorn, now in his eighth year at OU, was named top assistant in 1959. The 40-year-old line coach is also the assistant track coach.

Ken Fischer, 39, is beginning his seventh year at OU. The defensive coach is also the golf coach.

Don Benning, 30, was named assistant coach in 1963. He is head wrestling coach and has built the Indian mat squad into a serious, dedicated team.

Carl Meyers is one of the busiest coaches on the OU staff. Besides his football duties, he is the basketball and baseball assistant.

Virg Yelkin begins his 21st year as athletic director and baseball coach this fall. He came to OU in 1946 and has since compiled one of the most enviable baseball coaching records in the nation. Virg was named to the NAIA Hall of Fame in 1965 and NAIA Coach of the Year in 1962.
